CATS KILLED BY TWO DOGS. GOLDEN HAD NOTHING 10 DO WITH

THEIR MASSACRE. The Dogs Not His They Followed Him When He Went Around Drinking Beer, and Look at the Trouble He's In: While Policeman William J. Smith of the East Sixty seventh street station was at Sixtyofth street and Second avenue about 1 o'clock yesterday morning an uproar arose apparently at First avenue. The air was filled with the

ing of dogs, and an uncertain voice saying: "(i'wan at her; g'wan, you rase'ls. Sie her, Tha's right. Tha's a bute. Hi yl, whoop, G'wan, g'wan." Smith started down the street on the run. Windows were thrown up near First avenue, and other cries of encouragement joined those of the cries of a cat in distress, the snarling and bark-

While the policeman neared First avenue, cat was crouching at the foot of the basement stairs at 345 East Sixty-fifth street, and two does were snariing and barking in front of her, poking for a safe opening for an attack. The cat was spitting at them, and otherwise making as noisy a defence as possible. Standing on the plewalk was the owner of the uncertain voice. He was a big man, and, as he leaned forward unsteadily to watch the dogs better, he kept up a running comment on their performance: Soak it to her, Brandy! Got her in the neck. Hi, yt, yl, whoop! Now's your op'ning, Jim. G'wan, you coward, g'wan. Hi, yi, yi, yi, whoop! and with a quick shake had killed her. Brandy had started after another cat, followed by more hi-yi-yis, when Policeman Smith arrived. Adogs, the possessor of the uncertain voice said: Tha's allright, offischer. My nam's Golden, Ed tiolden. Tha's my dog, so's other, Jusbroke way from me. Tha's all, tha's all, Mean alright, oillscher, an' I'll take care of them.

The second cat had escaped from Brandy, and Smith was persuaded not to shoot the dogs on gothers promise to take them home. Golden gathered in the dogs, and walked down the street. The windows of the houses on either side of the street were closed with a bang, and Polecman Smith returned to Second avenue. An hour later a similar uproar broke out down the same street. Above the noise of the dogs and Golden's voice could be heard the wallings of a cat. Smith burried down the street and found tioden's going could be heard the wallings of a cat. Smith burried down the street and found tioden sgain enjoying himself. Brandy and Jim had cornered another cut in a basement and it was giving them a hard fight. Golden was coaching, and with him were four delighted friends. When the dogs made a good strike Golden pointed it out to his friends.

"Worth their weight in gold. Tha's right, Wouldn't seil'en. Tha's right, More fun'n a picnic. G'wan, you brutes, popper's watching. scond cat had escaped from Brandy, and Wouldn't seil 'em. Tha's right. More fun'n a pienic. G'wan, you brutes, popper's watching. Il, il, yil' and his friends joined in the whoop, for the cat had been killed.

Smith was in at the death and he arrested Golden. The latter's friends ran away and so did one of the dogs. The other dog followed half a block behind his master until the station house was reached, and then he scooted away. Golden was very drunk.

In the Yorkville Police Court he told Justice beuel that he knew nothing about the dogs. He said he just happened to be going by when the cat killing occurred.

peuclusat he knew nothing about the dogs. Ho said he just happened to be going by when the cat killing occurred.

Agent F. S. Snowden of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals appeared as the prosecutor, and told the Justice that for some time past cats had been killed almost every night in that neighborhood. One night last week Officer Loonen had found the bodies of cleven cats who had met violent deaths in East Sixty-fifth street.

Golden said that he was a driver for a coal dealer at the foot of Sixty-fifth street, and he didn't quite remember what had happened the night before. Justice Deuel held him in $300 haif for the Court of Special Sessions. Later in the day, when Golden was sober, he said:

"Haven't got any dogs. I went out last night and drank a few beers. Up on First avenue. The first dog came to me. I didn't ask him to, he just came. Couldn't get rid of him nowhow. I went 'round and had a few more beers, and the dog stuck to me. Then another dog came. I don't know where he came from. Then me and the two dogs went into a saloon, and I had some more beer. I wish some one would kill those dogs. Look at the trouble they've got me into. I never killed any cats. The dogs did it, and they ain't my dogs. I ain't got no dog, and that's straight. I had one once, and I gave him away. Those dogs aren't my dogs, anyway, and look at the trouble they have made me. I didn't kill the cats. The dogs did it."

BROOKLYN'S TROLLEY PROBLEM.

The Brooklyn Aldermen took another whack at the trolley problem yesterday, and adopted some new resolutions on the subject. Alderman Carey introduced a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of nine, three to be appointed by the Mayor, three to be members of the Board of Aldermen, and three to be named by the railroad corporations, to consider the question of trolley speed, fenders, &c. After a lively discussion, during which Mr. Carey was accused of being the close friend of the corporations, the resolution was defeated by a vote of Alderman Clark then moved that seven day trolley inspectors and seven night inspectors and one chief inspector, the former to receive $3 a day and the latter $1,000 a year, be chosen to act as special policemen and to supervise the running of the cars. He said that the conduct of some of the Aldermen in the matter was disgraceful, and that it was their duty to resign, The people were beginning to move away from Brooklyn under the terror of the murderous trolley, and some decisive action should be taken. After Mr. Carey had made a protest the resolution was adopted by a vote of 9 to 2. The Gay and night inspectors are to be named by the Aldermen, and the chief inspector by the

the Aldermen, and the chief inspector by the Mayor.

Alderman Cohn then offered a new trolley ordinance providing that the rate of speed should not exceed six miles an hour within a radius of one and a half miles from the City Hall or two miles from the Broadway ferries, and that in any other part of the first twenty-eight wards the rate of speed should not exceed eight miles an hour. The ordinance also provided that the cars should stop at each street crossing, except where the block is 300 feet or more in length, and that in the centre of such blocks a sign bearing the words "trolley station" should be put up. The ordinance was shopted by a vote of 11 to 1, Mr. Carey voting in the negative.

Alderman Cohn also introduced another resolution, compolling the railroad companies to

Alterman Cohn also introduced another resolation, compelling the railroad companies to have indicators in the cars showing the exact

GLEN RIDGE AND BLOOMFIELD.

Certiorari Proceedings Dismissed by the Branch Supreme Court.

Justices Lippincott and Dixon of the Branch Supreme Court, which met in Jersey City yesterday, considered the Bioomfield-Glen Ridge borough election case. They decided that a writ of certiorari was not the proper form of procedure and did not go into the merits of the case at all. The election was held and the certificate of the result filed before the writ of certiorari was allowed by Justice Depue in Essex county. An application had been made to Justice Depue before the election, but he decided to let the election go on and take action on the application tion go on and take action on the application afterware. As soon as the result of the election had been officially determined, the lawyer for the alworate of the borough hastened to file the certificate and succeeded in getting it filed hefore the opposition lawyer could find Justice liepus and get a writ of certiforari. The Court held yesterday that the filing of the certificate constituted the Ecologia a body corporate. That being the case, certiforari proceedings were not the proper remeily to test the validity of legality of the formation of a borough fier it had been constituted a body corporate the filing of the certificate under the statute. The only method now of inquiring into the leasility of the formation of the borough is by que warrante proceedings brought in the name of the Attorney-General of the State.

Letter Carrier Speedling Wins His Suit. Letter Carrier Alonzo F. Speedling recovered $15.85 damages in the Second District Court at Newark vesterday from Waiter H. Mitchell of $75 South Ninth street. Speedling entered Mitthell's yard to deliver mail and was set upon by a big dog, which bit him in the thigh. This oc-curred on March 13. The other letter carriers and Postmaster Rutan took active interest in the case as a matter of principle. Speedling such for $200, but got merely the costs of medi-cal attendance and pay for actual loss of time.

IN THE DIVORCE COURTS. Peculiar Question Raised in the Action of Artist Zinsier. The question was presented to Judge Andrews, in the Special Term of the Supreme Court, yes-terday as to whether a decree of separation granted by the tribunal of Rome, Italy, upon the ground of adultery, is sufficient in itself for the granting of an absolute divorce by the courts of this State. Under the Italian laws a separation can be granted only for adultery. The case in which this question was presented was an action brought by Henry Zinsler, an artist, for an abso lute divorce from his wife, Maria Teresa Zinsler. He was married to her in Rome in 1876, and in 1888 he obtained a decree of separation from her from the tribunal of Rome, the evidence showing her relations with an Ambassador from Bolivia, with whom she subsequently left Rome and went to Bolivia to live. Mr. Zinsler came to this city to reside in 1890.

His wife did not appear to defend this action, which is based entirely upon the decree of the Italian court. The main evidence introduced was a certified copy of the decree of separation of the Roman court, and facts tending to show that the papers in the action were served upon Mrs. Zinsler by publication. Decision was re-

Curry, who is serving a term of three and a half years in Sing Sing ing a term of three and a half years in Sing Sing for bigamy, were in the Supreme Court yesterday before Judge Andrews, where one of them, Sarah Curry, his first wife, to whom he was married in 1886, had an action for divorce on trial. Curry was a commercial traveller. He was married to Fredericka Penning of 42 First avenue in 1893. Curry lived with both women until the brother-in-law of wife No. 2 discovered Curry's secret and had him arrested in 1893. Judge Andrews said that he would grant the decree.

Judge McAdam, in the Superior Court, yesterday denied the application for alimony made by Jennie S. Simon, against whom her husband, Sigmund Simon, has brought an action for a limited divorce. The trouble between the couple began over the question as to who should be the boss of the house, and, finally, when Mr. Simon discharged a French maid, his wife left him and returned to the house of her father. Mr. Simon is an invalid. Michael Sampter, the wealthy clothier, is the father of the defendant. Judge McAdam allows the wife a counsel fee of $250, but in his decision says: "What is needed in this case is reconciliation and not alimony."

Judge Gildersleeve, in the Superior Court, Special Term, yesterday granted an absolute divorce to Josephine M. Alfring from her husband, Henry M. Alfring m. The two were married Aug. 31, 1892. Mrs. Alfring's father became suspicious of his son-in-law, and one night hist October he found him at the Hotel Pomeroy with a woman. Alfring did not defend the suit.

Judge McAdam has granted an absolute divorce to George F. Albers from Ellen T. Albers.

MARY BERNARD WINS HER SUIT An Insurance Agent Is Not Your Agent, but the Company's,

The General Term of the Court of Common Pleas has reversed the General Term of the City Court and given a judgment in favor of Mary C. Bernard against the United Life Insurance Company on a policy for $1,000 on the life of her mother, Elizabeth A. Kelly. The policy was taken out in favor of the daughter Feb. 26, 1891, through Cornelius Donovan, employed by the company. Donovan filled out the blanks on the application and stated that Mrs. Kelly had not applied for previous insurance, and had not been rejected for insurance in any other tion of Mrs. Kelly for insurance in the Mutual said it did not matter as long as the physician of his company passed her. The premiums were paid until the death of Mrs. Kelly, March 26, 1863.

This company refused to pay the money because of the misrepresentation as to the previous refusal of insurance, and claimed that by the terms of the applications and policies Donovan was the agent of the insured and not that of the company. the company.

The decision, written by Judge Pryor and concurred in by Judges Daly and Bischoff, says:

"No formula of words can effectually alter the nature of things, and the actual agent of the company cannot be transmuted into somebody else's agent. Such a claim is shocking to the eise's agont. Such a claim is shocking to the sense of justice."

He says further:
"Notwithstanding, then, the confusion of characters so craftily contrived by the defendant to clude its righteous obligations, Donovan continued its agent, his acts were its acts; and as against the innocent plaintiff, the defendant is estopped to allege the false answer in the application in bar of the action."

The case was tried twice. The jury gave a plication in bar of the action."

The case was tried twice, The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff at the first trial, but a reversal was had at General Term of the City Court. At the second trial the case was dismissed and the City Court, General Term, upheld the dismissal.

HOECKING AND VONLAIRE SENT UP. The Widow Swindler for Three Years, the

Charles Hoecking, the plausible middle-aged swindler who has victimized many widows in this part of the country by advertising for a wife and getting their money with or without going through the formality of a marriage, was sentenced in Newark yesterday to a three-year term in the New Jersey State Prison. He was captured in Newark six weeks or so ago, and has since been identified by three wives and four women whom he robbed without the aid of a clergyman. Half a dozen other victims have been heard from, but did not make formal com-plaint or testify as witnesses.

Hoecking has been imprisoned for the same offence before, and while in prison in this State he made the acquaintance of Albert St. Clair, alias Vonlaire, a son of a reputable resident of St. Louis. Vonlaire went to Newark as soon as he leard that Hoecking was in trouble, and it is believed that he did so to secure some money that Hoecking was supposed to have on deposit in this city. that Hocking was supposed to have on deposit in this city.

He tried to raise money by means of checks upon a Baltimore bank. He was foolish enough to make the attempt in a saloon near Police Headquarters and to refer to Chief of Police Hopper as a friend. This resulted in his arrest, and yesterday he was sentenced to two years imprisonment. Both men pleaded guilty and probably avoided more charges and longer imprisonment. Both prisoners have strong reasons o avoid notoriety. Hocking's operations have been described in the papers for ten or twelve years, and vary only slightly in detail. He opened correspondence with widows with money, introduced himself as a saloon or hotel keeper, took them to the places he claimed to own or intended to buy, and got a few hundred or a few thousand dollars from them, if possible before marriage, but if thwarted in this he went through the marriage ceremony and got the money as quickly as possible thereafter.

The Courts of Over and Terminer and Gen The Courts of Oyer and Terminer and General Sessions were adjourned it yesterday morning out of respect to the memory of the late Judge Martine. Justice Ingraham opened the extraordinary session of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and adjourned until to-morrow. The Extraordinary Grand Jury continued its session, although it will not make its final report until to-morrow. Justice Barrett, who will sit at the ensuing term of the court, also opened his court at 10% o'clock. District Attorney Fellows requested that Justice Barrett transfer his calendar of cases to the General Sessions. The Justice did as requested so that will leave his court calendar clear for the trials of the police and election officials indicted by the Extraordinary Grand Jury. The first of these will be the trial of Inspector Mc-Laughlin on Monday. Among the cases sent to the General Sessions were those of Detective Sergeant William E. Frink and Sergeant O'Toole, indicted for bribery in connection with the case of Dr. Newton Whitehead; Michael Considine, for murder; Patrick Brennan, for manslaughter, and Caroline Kraft, for man

All the jurors in the panel summoned for the pril term were discharged, much to their satisfaction. This, the District Attorney explained

All the jurors in the panel summoned for the April term were discharged, much to their satisfaction. This, the District Attorney explained, was done because the jurors to try the accused officials would be drawn from that panel, and the Court desired to wait until all the indictments had been handed in. Justice Barrett's court was adjourned until Monday.

It is expected that the final report of the Extraordinary Grand Jury will be accompanied by indictments against more police officials, and possibly some against Fire Department and other municipal officials.

It was proposed to hold a general meeting of the Judges and lawyers in the Court of General Sessions in Part I. of that court, but the selection of the April Grand Jury occupied the attention of Recorder Goff, and in Parts II. and III. addresses were made by Assistant District Attorneys Weeks and Davis in eulogy of Judge Martine. Judge Fitzgerald adjourned court after making a brief address. Judge Cowing adjourned Part III. on motion of Mr. Weeks. The Judge said:

"I was greatly shocked on Saturday at the sudden and unexpected death of one of our learned associates. I knew Judge Martine for many years, and no one could know him without having a profound respect for him. He was anot only a just Judge, but a companionable and lovable man. He was a Judge who took a great pride in his court, and its welfare was always uppermost in his mind."

Recorder Goff made no eulogistic remarks, but adjourned Part I. on motion of Assistant District Attorney Townsend.

The grand jurors selected for the April term are as follows: Michael Lefferts, Nice-President, 427 Broadway; Charles F. Buxton, merchant, 329 Produce Exchange; Francis Hentricks, metals, 46 Cliff street; Lindsay C. Ivory, agent, 234 Broadway; S. J. O'Sullivan, Hotel Kensington, 73 Fifth avenue; Charles H. Isham, merchant, 161 Gold street; James E. Downes, shoes, 200 Bleecker street; Goorge Merlinew, retired, 38 West Forty-sixth street; Henry Sples, retired merchant, 153 East Eighty-second street; Paulding F ington Market, and Exchange place.

The pall bearers at the funeral of Judge Martine will be Judge George C. Barrett, Judge Henry A. Gildersleve, Judge Rufus W. Cowing, Judge James Fitzgerald, Judge Charles A. Truax, District Attorney John R. Feilows, Delancey Nicoll, United States Marshal John H. McCarthy, Police Justice Charles Weide, ex-Police Justice Charles Weide, ex-Police Justice Andrew J. White, Assistant District Attorneys Hartow S. Weeks and Vernon N. Davis, Philip Milligan, James W. Boyle, Gilbert M. Spier, and John C. Wheeler. The family has decided not to have the interment at Woodlawn immediately after the funeral.

CUT-RATE THEATRE TICKETS.

Botto May Turn State's Evidence and Expose the Whole System.

Walter D. Botto, the theatrical manager, who vas arrested on Saturday for getting an order for two passes on the Lyceum Theatre and selling them to Louis Wagner, cigar dealer and ticket speculator at 407 Sixth avenue, will, it was rumored yesterday, turn State's evidence. He was arraigned with Wagner before Justice Coordis at the Tombs Police Court yesterday and recommitted for examination to-morrow afternoon. Assistant District Attorney Battle had a short talk previously with Botto's lawyer, Daniel F. O'Reilly.

The theatrical people present seemed pleased at the prospect of Botto telling all he knows, as they expect his disclosures will help to break up the sale of cut-rate theatre tickets.

A. J. Spencer of Jacob Litt's office said that Morton told him he had bought from $5 to $8 worth of tickets at Wagner's place.

"I suppose the New York managers lose $10,000 a week," said Mr. Spencer, "by means of the cut-rate system. If Botts tells the inside workings of the system and tells names, I think he'll make friends of theatrical managers." and recommitted for examination to-morrow gers."
Among the theatrical people present were Frederick T. Bunce, representing Daniel Frohman of the Lyceum Theatre; W. F. Keogh of Davis & Keogh; P. E. Matthews, representing J. M. Hill of the Standard Theatre, and Charles Davis, Robert Ingersoil's manager.

TICKET AGENT KELSEY MISSING Forfeited His Good Job on the Bridge for a Paitry Amount.

Pres-George Hirsch, who also was suspended. President Howell began yesterday an investigation in the case of Hirsch, and Kelsey, who had been summoned as a witness, did not appear. When the embezzlement was discovered Kelsey would have been arrested had he not been under an indemnity bond for $500. In case his family make good the shortage he will not be prosecuted. He had been in the employment of the bridge trustees for eight years, and there never had been any suspicion of his dishonesty. He leaves a young wife and a six-months-oid infant behind him. Under any circumstances the bridge ticket stealing could not have been carried on over a month.
